Random Notes Index

The first phase of producing an index for Random Notes is now complete with all Notes from the first edition to the latest having been indexed.

There are bound to be errors and omissions with the index; it is a large task for one person. I would like whatever comments you may have and if relevant for new subjects or corrections, please let me know the correct references if appropriate. It will save me having to search all Random Notes issues for the index references.

The next phase will be one of improvement and correction resulting from feedback supplied by APAl members. As an example of improvements that could be made, a search could be made available for a specific stamp or set of stamps. Candidates that spring to mind are the 20p official stamp of the 1964 set and the Hejaz Survey of Egypt stamps with the unframed overprint printed in gold. The subject must be of sufficient importance to warrant the amount of work involved, but this level of detail is achievable.

This index is in two main parts with an additional list of Subject Groups to help the user decide on the search terms for a particular subject. The first part is a breakdown on each Random Note issue and the second part is a breakdown by Subject Group. Searching is achieved by using the appropriate method for the application you are using to view the PDF file.

Where an article relates to several search keys, each of the keys will usually be allocated to the entire article and not just the pages in that article relating to the key. As an example, an article about the Dam, GOSP & Air (DGA) stamps will have each of the DGA types allocated to the entire article. Not only does that make indexing easier but keeps the RN reference for each item a manageable length.

Thank you

Random Notes Index

Date: 8 October 2023

Part 1 - Breakdown by Random Notes Issue

Status: All Random Notes up to 101 have been fully indexed.

At some time, Scott changed their catalogue numbers for Saudi Arabia and the numbers appearing in Random Notes no longer make sense. If the description of the stamp is omitted for such items, they may not appear in the index. Articles in RN96 and RN101 give the old and new Scott numbers.

Part 2 - Breakdown by Subject

Status: All Random Notes up to 101 have been fully indexed.

At some time, Scott changed their catalogue numbers for Saudi Arabia and the numbers appearing in Random Notes no longer make sense. If the description of the stamp is omitted for such items, they may not appear in the index. Articles in RN96 and RN101 give the old and new Scott numbers.
